Office of the Governor

Whereas, Safe and affordable housing provides the foundation upon which neighborhood and community stabilization is achieved, and family security and personal dreams are realized; and,

Whereas, Tribal, economic and civic leaders and private investors throughout South Dakota continue to work together in partnership to further the opportunities for safe and affordable housing; and,

Whereas, The opportunity to create affordable housing depends upon the successful work of many partners, including Senator Tim Johnson, Senator John Thune, Representative Stephanie Herseth Sandlin; affordable housing developers such as Costello Companies; owners such as CitiHousing, Inc. and Costello Companies; financing partners such as South Dakota Housing Development Authority, USDA Rural Development, Citibank (South Dakota), N.A., and Wells Fargo Bank, N.A.; and general contractors such as Developers & Associates, Inc.; and,

Whereas, Sunrise III Townhomes on the Rosebud Sioux Indian Reservation in Mission, South Dakota, a neighborhood community of townhomes with project costs of over $10 million, was created through the innovation and collaboration of the partners; and,

Whereas, Eighty-five percent of the workforce that constructed Sunrise III Townhomes are Native Americans who received training through the on-site trade school, created and managed by Developers & Associates, Inc., with many of the workers continuing to use their skills in other construction projects in and around Mission, South Dakota; and,

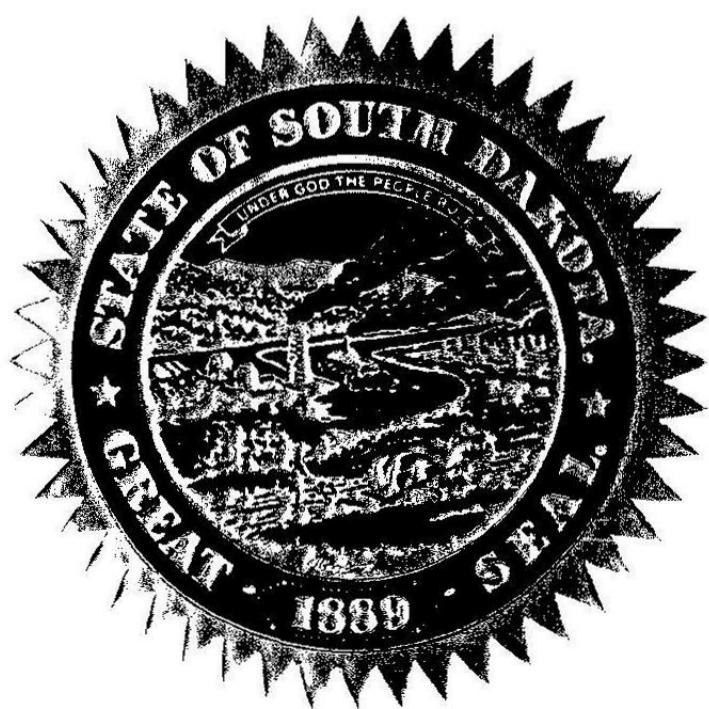

Whereas, The Sunrise complex has more than 300 children that participate in the many youth programs that are sponsored by the Costello Companies' management team and has created a Neighborhood Watch program to keep their new community safe and free from crime; and,

Whereas, One hundred families on the Rosebud Sioux Indian Reservation will take pride in and enjoy the benefits of living in their new, safe and affordable housing:
